THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1912

Nothing has been said recently about Silver's race for mayor of New York.

Atlanta must hustle around now to get up something else to get excused over, that the Krunk case has come to a close.

An Albany, Ga., man boys up to a newspaper, to warn the farmers against ginning their cotton, has advised them to take it up with him and contract for 15 cents per pound.

Hugh Dorsey, of Georgia, is going to have to run for governor before he will ever forgive his record as prosecuting attorney in the Frank case. Georgia hasn't shown to honor men by throwing upon them office, and unless Dorsey is mighty careful he is in for his life.

If paroled post charges continue to come down during the next few years as they have during this year it won't be long before a farmer can go to mill by mail. He can shell a bushel of corn, mail it to his miller and the next day get his bushel of meal back, less the toll, and a few pennies for postage and never stop a plow or take a mule from the wagon.

WORRY.

The Georgian has an editorial which says that natural working life of a man should be eight years, at least and the article would convey the idea that we all hurry through life too much.

It is a common thing for men to go out prematurely when they have been accustomed to a high pressure existence.

Most of us worry through life, worry through our meals, with minds on other things, and we continue to worry till it's up to the undertaker.

This fine tribute to Wondrow Wilson is from the New York World and every word deserved.

"It is a difficult problem that has confronted Mr. Wilson from the hour that he took office, but his treatment of it has won for a steady increase in popular confidence and respect. When he has made public all the records in the case, it will probably be found that his acts have been well considered, but evident in their bearing upon our distracted neighbors, firm in their assertion of American rights and duties, and mindful of the responsibilities of his great office. Such difficulties as this test the metal of statesmen and gentlemen as well as the fiber of nations. In attempting with patience and dignity so to shape the course of the United States as to promote only the right, he has given his own countrymen as well as the people of Mexico an object lesson that is very impressive. Those who have questioned Mr. Wilson's equipment for the post that he occupies are all relieved today. He is of presidential stature and everybody knows it."

SOLD ALL OVER THE WORLD

THE VALUE OF PERSONALITY ON MONETARY BASIS.

The value of personality in business can hardly be estimated. It is said that the personality of John Wanamaker has done more than any other one thing to build up his enormous business—except advertising.

Mr. Wanamaker told recently on himself that at the close of his first day's business—that business known now all over the world as one of the biggest and most profitable in the merchant field—his cash receipts were $24,167. The $24 he invested immediately in an advertisement of his business. The 67 cents he put in the cash drawer to start change for the next day.

If he had not possessed so remarkable a personality he would never have become the Prince of Merchants.

In his great stores in New York and Philadelphia he is loved by every clerk, and bundle carrier. His rest rooms, his reading rooms, his lunch rooms, all show him the man as well as the merchant—the friend as well as the employer.

All who work for him love him. In his great store there are now no shoddy goods. His stock is always what it is represented to be, and on his shelves may be found the output of the markets of the world.

Have you ever read an advertisement of the great Wanamaker store carefully and critically?

Take the advertisement appearing in the Philadelphia North American of August 20.

Up in the left hand corner, always in the Wanamaker advertisements, is an editorial, over the great merchant's signature. The Tide of Travel. "By train, by boat and by motor," it reads, "the thousands who have been spending their vacations in pleasant places are journeying homeward."

And then for a quarter of a column of the page, at the top, is an other bright chart at 3. The Wanamaker Plan.

"It comes a little earlier than the old this year, and some people are complaining that they cannot be expected to come back to the city when the thermometer is 92 to get a bargain in plums."

"Yesterday at Atlantic City at the hotel from which it seemed to an exaggerating man that there were something like a million people departing in the sea."

Then there follows an interesting talk on phones—and not a word about prices.

That is one of John Wanamaker's peculiarities in advertising. He does not dwell on prices. He bank on his store recommending itself, and his advertisement recommending his store, and he has one price for all, and plainly marked on all goods sold in his store, where all who run may read.

There is a quote from the Wanamaker Park store, commenting on the new suit and gown fashions but not a word about prices.

There is a link about the black velvet hats Paris is wearing.

In the center of the page there are household goods with prices listed.

But generally, in the Wanamaker talk you will note that stress is not laid on prices. It is laid on quality. And it is made interesting.

Mr. Wanamaker is interesting himself. He has personality. And it is not more apparent in anything he does than in his advertising.

He never takes less than a 10% in the great Philadelphia and New York dailies, and he takes this pay-every day. He has advertised continuously and copiously ever since he started in business.

How well this has paid him can be seen in the great business which he controls in America, London and Paris—Peninsula Journal.

DREAMS AND HIM TO FIND DAUGHTER HE THOUGHT DEAD

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Joe Andrade, happier than he has been for years, is in New York visiting the serial today from Italy of his daughter, Phile, who until a few weeks ago, he believed was lost in the disaster at Messina.

He was nine years ago that he closed Bible school where she was then there and left her with the grandparents in Messina.

Then the earthquake came, and no trace of the girl could be found. She was mounted as dead.

But Andrade often dreamed that his child was alive, and two years ago, when he presented him his resignation papers, he told United States Congressman Mark A. Hanna about his dreams. The congressman wrote a letter to the consul general at Genoa, who finally located Phile in the city hospital there.

The consul general learned that Phile had been caught in some wreckage and washed to a hillside by the tidal wave at Messina. There she was found three days later by Queen Helena who accompanied Red Cross nurses to the scene of the catastrophe.

JACK JOHNSONWOULD BECOME A FRENCHMAN

Paris, Aug. 27.—Through his close friend, Jack Johnson, the Negro pugilist who fled to France from the United States after he had been convicted in the latter country of white slavery, today filed declarations of his intentions to become a French citizen. Johnson, an American, informed that he had bought property in this country and intended to make it his home in the future.

The best interests of France, as far as power are my own," said the pugilist.

Johnson is in London at present, having come there for a threatened engagement. His friends say he that he will never again return to the United States.

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst.

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardus, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardus, I was greatly helped, and all three boiles relieved me entirely.

I sat up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardus is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardus makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, yellow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardus has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years.

It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardus today.

Jetam on the broad, flowing tide of character.

To that man or woman, it may be the mortal matter of custom or habit, which lies as no break in chain on his or her eternal soul.

Think well then, with frankness and tolerance, before you act in opposition to the mighty commandment which may be in your mind.

Mrs. Walter Wadsworth, president of the W. A. Q. Club, met at delightful luncheon on Friday afternoon at her lovely home on North Union street.

The apartment where three tables were arranged for the luncheon at Union Bridge were prettily decorated with cut flowers and greenery.

After the games in which Mrs. Hulie Smith won the first prize of silk hose and Mrs. Edna Gold the giant prize of a hundred dollars in refreshments consisting of a salad and an 8 course was served.

Those who enjoyed this delicious luncheon were: Mrs. M. L. McIntyre, Mrs. Kildred, Bob Walker, E. Gentry, Mrs. G. Smith, Mrs. G. Gobou, Brock, L. Ford, Norris and Mrs. Alice Watford.

Mrs. Minnie Land, who has been visiting points in Georgia, has returned home.

Mrs. Charles Crawford left the morning for Adairsville, Ga., where she will teach history and geography in the Cherokee Institute. She was accompanied as far as Macon by her brother Robert, where he will visit relatives.

Surly, surely we all have enough to do in the perfecting of our own souls without searching and prying for sparks and blemishes on those of other people.

You will notice the liveliest souls those which have been strengthened by the fires of tribulation those which have known the purifying joys of self-sacrifice are the farthest removed from the curling, critical spirit.

People who are untried by this spirit never look inward for faults their eyes on the contrary are keen for their neighbors' imperfections—and you will all remember the parable of the two who the beam of justice removed from the curling critical spirit.

RELIEF IN NICK OF TIME SAVES SIX IN ANTARCTIC

From the Experience of Dothan People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Dothan residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. J. W. Dozier, 701 S. Apple Street, Dothan, Ala., says: "I am son the expedition Arctic 1911 and have been companion to the remaining 23 members of Dr. Mawson's expedition to the South Pole. We are fortunate to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Dothan residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

The six men were believed to have provisions to last them until the Arctic Spring, but the commander of a government steamer recently said in their relief reports that the explorers had exhausted all their supplies and had been living on game that on the hearts and tongues of their elephants.

All of them were in weakened condition when the relief ship reached them.

Dr. Mawson's expedition was unfortunate in losing by death two of its members owing to accidents on the ice. Lieutenant Nilsen, in the hospital officer, and Dr. X. H. Mawson, a Swedish scientist.

The expedition left Hobart, Tasmania on December 2, 1911. It met short delay, the exploration and survey of the Antarctic coastline. When the Aurora went to the ice, the explorers took only 1000 lbs. of supplies and the vessel was forced to leave before taking on Dr. Mawson and five of his companions as the ship was in danger of being crushed by pack ice.

Washington, Aug. 27. Now that it seems quite certain that there will be no election in Alabama for senator until the primary next spring for the long term special, then he can't be in Washington to be the candidate.

Mr. Underwood's friends are pressing him to seek the nomination on the grounds that with the result of the election the party will be in the administration so far as the house of representatives is concerned. It has been accomplished and that in the Senate he will find a new field rich opportunity for his endeavors and that he will soon become as dominant a figure in the upper body as he is now in the lower.

On the other hand some of them are trying to point out to him that it would be a released mistake for him to leave the house where his relationship is undisturbed. Anyway, Mr. Underwood's friends say that he has not made up his mind what he will do about it and that he is going to look at the proposition from every angle before he does decide.
